Debra Hamilton Accepted into the National Speakers Association

September 6, 2006—The National Speakers Association (NSA), the leading organization for experts who speak professionally, recently accepted Debra Hamilton as a professional member of the Association.

Hamilton, president of Creative Communications & Training, Inc., is a professional speaker, learning consultant, and presentation skills coach who offers inspiring keynotes/seminars on communication, leadership, and teamwork. She is the founder and editor of Communication Guru[™], a monthly e-newsletter, and has developed and presented numerous Business Lunch & Learn programs, as well as speeches and interactive full-day workshops to top-tier companies.

To become an NSA member, Hamilton had to provide documentation of her professional speaking experience and express ongoing commitment to a strict code of ethics. NSA currently has more than 4,100 members in 23 countries.

“The NSA provides resources and education designed to advance skills and add value to the speaking profession. I am passionate about speaking to diverse groups of professionals and look forward to a long-term and active membership with NSA,” says Hamilton.

Hamilton is also a member of the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC), Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM), New Jersey Association of Women Business Owners (NJAWBO), and the Mahwah Regional Chamber of Commerce.

To discuss an upcoming event, call Debra at (973) 697-3455, or view her Business Lunch & Learn menu at www.businesslunchandlearn.com. A free subscription to Communication Guru[™] is available at <http://www.businesslunchandlearn.com/newsletter.html>.

Creative Communications & Training, Inc. is a consulting and training firm based in West Milford, NJ, and works with companies throughout the United States and abroad.
